TOMATO CATALOGUE

SEEDS, SEEDLINGS & FRUIT

A note from TNG+T

We have been growing heirloom tomatoes on our farm at Selbourne in Tasmania's beautiful Meander Valley since 2010. We grow seasonally and we grow in the soil, using organic and biological methods, because that's when food tastes best.

We produce approximately 150 varieties of tomatoes each year, choosing our varieties firstly for taste, but also to provide a wide range of colour, shape, use and adaptability (to different conditions and garden sizes).

Last season, we grew a range of yellow/orange tomatoes, chosen by the Royal Tasmanian Botanical Gardens for their specific health benefits. We will continue to grow those varieties out and return seed to the RTBG for their seed bank. This season we want to offer the first of them to you. We will be featuring varieties that are high in tetra-cis-lycopene, a powerful antioxidant with particular health benefits for the heart and cancer fighting properties (especially prostate). Also new is Golden Eye, a cherry high in beta-carotene for eye health. Our seedlings are raised in unheated poly tunnels, with only essential bottom heat for the plants themselves, because we want them hardy enough to survive the cool Tasmanian conditions. We know you'll find something to suit your needs. If you need some help, please let us know.
